OUR LADY OF THE ROSARY CHURCH

The man who stepped up

The visionary behind our parish church, Fr Leahy, fell ill before construction was finished. He ended up returning to Ireland. Completion of the project was left to a young colleague in the Angelico Street priory, Fr Niall McDermott.

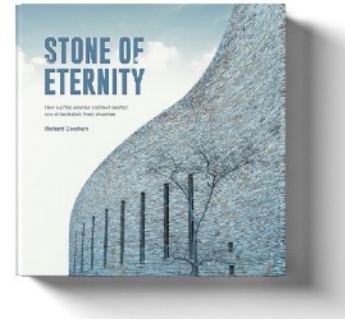

Fr Mac, as he still likes to be known, had worked alongside Fr Leahy from 1970, having first met him in Canberra in 1962. The designer and building supervisor had shared his thoughts and ideas with his younger understudy and the pair had worked through some of Fr Leahy's concerns and uncertainties.

Fr Mac lives in Dublin these days but he was instrumental in ushering the project to fruition in 1972 and early 1973 when a large range of finishing touches, such as furniture and fittings, needed to be put in place.

On 13-14 May this year we will celebrate the 50th anniversary of Fr Leahy's achievements with a special Mass, morning tea and launch of a specially-commissioned book on the building and the dedicated Irishman behind it.

Stone of Eternity

Stone of Eternity has been commissioned to mark the 50th anniversary of the completion and opening of Our Lady of the Rosary church in May 1973. It details the vision of its designer and builder Fr Bonaventure Leahy OP, describes the key biographic threads of his life (1920-1990) and includes interviews with contractors and parishioners who worked on the project. The book's 15 chapters are illustrated with contemporary and historical photographs and sample documents. Readers will learn about the Doubleview parish church's unique architecture, artworks and fittings, some of the remarkable people who accompanied Leahy on his mission and the priest's divine inspiration, humility and personal sacrifices. Publication proceeds after costs will go to the Our Lady of the Rosary Foundation to aid the ongoing preservation of the church building.

Dear Parishioners and Visitors,

Encounter with Jesus on the way to Emmaus

In today's gospel, on the day of the Resurrection two disciples finally recognise Jesus "in the breaking of the bread." Luke, the Gospel writer, tells us that Jesus then disappears from their sight. The reason he disappears is so that his disciples, like us, will get used to living without him being visibly present. But we, like the two disciples, will still have him as a companion on our journey through life.

Isn't that the main point of the clever way St Luke tells us the story of those two disciples on their journey to Emmaus? They will never see him again in this life. Luke knows that we will never see him either. Yet as the story develops it becomes clear that we don't need to see Jesus to experience his presence with us.

When the Gospel is read to us at Mass and reflected on by us, we are in the same situation as the two disciples being instructed by Jesus on the way to Emmaus. And when we come to the altar to receive the Eucharist, we too are meant to recognise Jesus "in the breaking of the bread," just like those two disciples at Emmaus.

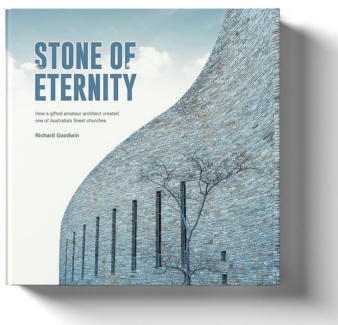

One final thought about this story. Jesus accompanies us through life so that we will gradually come not just to love him, but to become like him. On the way to Emmaus that day, Jesus took his place alongside the disillusioned and suffering disciples, listening to their story and their broken hopes. He then tries to set that story in the context of a wider scriptural account of salvation. In that story, as in our own, salvation is brought by One who walks with humanity in its suffering in order to lead them into and to share his glory.

Fr. Tom.
